State Historical Resources Commission Elects Anthea Hartig As New Chair

SACRAMENTO – Anthea Hartig of Riverside has been elected the new chair and Lauren Bricker of Redlands the new vice-chair of the State Historical Resources Commission, the state's principal policy-setting body in the area of historic preservation.

Hartig, 37, an assistant professor of history at La Sierra University in Riverside, is the former president of Hartig and Associates, a cultural resources management consulting firm. Prior to that, she was a senior planner/historic preservation officer for the City of Riverside from 1994 to 1998. Hartig, who holds a Ph.D. from the University of California, Riverside, also served as an intern research assistant at the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation in Virginia.

Bricker, 46, of Redlands, is an assistant professor for the Department of Architecture, California State Polytechnic University, Pomona, a position she has held since 1999. She also has a practice as an architectural historian. In fall 2001, she will become a member of the Academic Senate at Cal Poly Pomona.

Bricker, who holds a Ph.D. from the University of California, Santa Barbara, was a member of the faculty of the University of Redlands, Whitehead Center for Lifelong Learning from 1999 to 2000 and served as a part-time professor for Riverside Community College from 1996 to 1999. She served as Architectural Historian for the Foundation for San Francisco's Architectural Heritage from 1988 to 1991.

The State Historical Resources Commission, comprised of professional and public members appointed by the governor, reviews applications for listing historic properties on the National Register of Historic Places, the California Register of Historical Resources and for designation as a California Registered Historical Landmark and a California Point of Historical Interest.

The commission's next scheduled meetings are Feb. 1, 2002, in Davis; May 2 in Santa Rosa; August 2, 2002 in Folsom; and November 8 in Riverside.
